Who is anyone?

"This is a short story about four co-workers named Everyone, Someone, Anyone and No One. There was some very important work to do and Everyone was sure that Someone would take care of it. Anyone could have done it, but No One did. Someone got mad, because it was Everyone's job. Everyone thought Anyone could do it, but No One knew that Everyone would not do it. In the end, Everyone accused Someone because No One did what Anyone could have done."

This short allegory about "anyone" shows what passing out V&Cs is about. Because bringing the truth to light is everyone's business, it needs a personal step from every single person. As long as you don't say: I am now going to be an accountable courier or at least pass out the V&C, you still belong to the category of "everyone" and end up moving "no one".

The "Juncker principle" loses weight

ga. "We decide something, put it out there and wait a while to see if something happens. If there is no screaming and no opposition, because most don't even understand what was decided, we keep on going – step by step, until there is no turning back."

These are the words of Jean-Claude Juncker, minister president of Luxembourg and head of the EU in 1999. When you hear such words from a leading politician, you have to seriously ask yourself which goals our politicians are actually following?! You cannot feel "for the good of the people" here anymore; it is rather the opposite. Because if what they decide is supposed to create screaming and opposition, it cannot be decisions for the people, only such that stab them in the back. But this is the end of that – we are bringing the truth!

Alexander Solshenitsyn's Harvard Address of 1978

Hastiness and superficiality are the psychic disease of the 20th century and more than anywhere else this disease is reflected in the press. In-depth analysis of a problem is anathema to the press. It stops at sensational formulas. Such as it is, however, the press has become the greatest power within the Western countries, more powerful than the legislature, the executive and the judiciary. One would then like to ask: by what law has it been elected and to whom is it responsible? In the communist East a journalist is frankly appointed as a state official. But who has granted Western journalists their power, for how long a time and with what prerogatives?" Original text:

A politically motivated trial?

mab. On June 25, 2012 there was big fight in front of the asylum home in Flaach (Switzerland) between two groups of foreigners. The editor of the Swiss newspaper "Schweizerzeit" Ulrich Schlüer was an eyewitness of the brutal event. On July 19, Schlüer wrote about it in great detail in a bulletin. He did not leave anything out, especially when character-typing the brutal conduct of those fighting. He also remarked that the initiative for ridding the nation of foreigners, which was already voted on by the people in 2010, finally needed to begin. What happened then is hard to believe and unworthy of a democratic state. There was a trial started, not against the brutal thugs, but against national councillor Ulrich Schlüer for "discrimination of the races". Is this really about a case of justice and not possibly a political maneuver? Since there are more trials in Zurich against politicians from the SVP party (Swiss people's party), the question is more than relevant.

Xavier Naidoo – a seducer of the people?

is. The German hip hop musician Xavier Naidoo was reported to officials by the youth organization of the left-wing party "Linksjugend Solid". The accusation: Call to serious bodily harm and murder, as well as seduction of the people. And why? Naidoo, the good-natured Christian suddenly on the edge? The reason for the accusation was his hidden track at the end of his new CD "gespaltene Persönlichkeit" ("split personality"). Admittedly, the hidden song with the title "Wo sind" ("where are") contains strong, but especially crude and obscene lyrics. And yet it could not be any more beneficial, if incorruptible officials would just investigate exactly those groups that Xavier Naidoo is writing about. Naidoo describes nothing other than ritual child sacrifices in Satanist covens, when he angrily sings against them: "Now I'll saw your arms and legs off, and then I'll fuck you in the ... just like you do with the little ones ... you murder children! ..." Whoever thinks that something like this does not exist is downright mistaken. Our officials and sect consultants know all about this – but have not done anything about it yet. The new documentary "Sexzwang" by Ivo Sasek proves this in every detail. It was filmed as an appeal to the judicial system and officials so they finally dig up the worldwide pedophile child abuser network and put an ultimate end to the sacrificial child murders. If the judiciary system and officials rate Xavier Naidoo's cry to

Old survey outdated

rb. The so-called APA* survey of 2005 is proven invalid. It had resulted in the statement that there are no substantial differences between children from intact families and children from homosexual families. The survey has now been revealed to be scientifically improper and was superseded by the investigations on a broad basis by Prof. M. Regnerus of the University of Texas. Regnerus researched the life situations of 3'000 adults having been brought up in homosexual relationships and compared them to people from intact families. Just one example of the results: 69% of the people brought up by lesbian couples now live off of state welfare, 23% were abused as children, others suffer health problems and tend in high percentages to depression, drug consumption or crime. People from intact families, on the contrary, are on average better educated, mentally and physically healthier, and are fundamentally satisfied with their lives to a higher degree.

The transparent voter opens the door to the White House

sk. Behind the re-election of Obama lies a highly professional voting campaign machinery. Similar to Google, modern election strategists gather data on the web site of their party with „tracking tools“ (little internet spies), which tell what the voters are interested in and what they inform themselves about. This data is linked with information from talks with voluntary election workers, consumer studies and publicly accessible records of voting registers. That way the democratic campaign headquarters – even more so than the Republicans – could work with a huge collection of information. They were able to use up to 500 most private details of information per citizen. That way it was possible to reach each person with the best fitting and most convincing message. Is this not manipulation? It is a fact: Whoever knows his voters best, has best chances to win the election.

The EU – protector or dictator?

ah. In 2011, the German city of Gießen started a campaign for the re-education of sexual ideals. This propagandistic act motivated the youth to: "Have sex how and with whom you want." Various billboards and postcards sent to over 140 institutions in the city not only animated children and youths to try homosexuality, but also group sex, supported by the "pro familia" agency of Gießen. [n. b.e.: "Pro familia" is comparable with the American agency "Planned Parenthood".] Whoever has negative feelings when seeing the billboards and dares talk about this publicly must count on being punished. The EU has demanded since 2006 that their nations mete out homophobia by "extremely efficient prosecution". * This means that whoever even has negative feelings towards homosexuality will be placed on the same level as racists and anti-Semites and under certain circumstances discriminated against and punished. The aforementioned campaigns and decrees aim at the direct destruction of the family. If our children and youth have their last bit of moral blown away, if even subjective feelings are punishable, it is definitely time to uncover this dictatorial rule of force.

Africa and the AIDS business

af. AIDS is not a real illness, but a series of symptoms and stands for very many different illnesses that have existed earlier. In Africa, the people primarily die of the consequences of poverty, of bad drinking water, deficient or bad nourishment, flawed hygiene and many infections that have been known for a long time. When the people die, the cause of death is simply labeled "AIDS". This is why especially Africa's AIDS death toll statistics are much too high.

AIDS experts in Tanzania treat AIDS patients with healthy nutrition and hygiene. Of course this is not something the establishment wants to hear – which is why it also remains unpublished in the mass media. Chemical "AIDS medication" (AZT for instance) makes a lot more money, about 15'000 US dollars per patient per year. With a worldwide total of over 35 million "AIDS patients", the pharmaceutical industry earns over 500 trillion dollars. Enough to sacrifice millions of human lives without a bad conscience.
