INTRO

"Lies soon catch up and liars grow a long nose!" As obvious as Pinocchio's nose grew when he lied, our established media's lies will become evident in their one-sided and often dishonest reporting practice as well. The good thing is that the people are growing up and maturing and no longer let themselves be fooled as easily. The censored media will wish it had long legs when the people realize what is really going on. Get yourself up as well right now and make every lie you know of public. That's how we all create a better tomorrow together. Every one of us counts now!"

Reports about Israel's Air-Force Attack against Syria is based on mere assumptions

mab. The mainstream media announced unanimously that the Israeli military actions on the 30th of January 2013, bring up lots of questions. Nobody knows for sure exactly what happened. Israel's current practice, of neither confirming such missions nor denying them, for reasons of safety, surely adds to the confusion. According to the New York Times, observers assume that the Syrian anti-aircraft missiles which Israel is supposed to have destroyed, had been intended for Hezbollah. On the other hand, the Syrian government reported that a

The suspicious agreement of the so-called "independent" media

eb. Thierry Meyssan is a French journalist, political activist and had, in December of 2012, already identified the following concerning the situation in Syria: "While the French press keeps announcing the 'impending fall of the government' in Syria and 'Bashar al-Assad fleeing', the situation in Syria has changed dramatically. Even if a great part of the country is in a chaotic state, the 'liberated regions' have melted away like snow in the sun. And without these havens to draw upon, the Free Syrian Army's (FSA) chances of winning melt away as well." On January 28, 2013, President Bashar al-Assad supported this statement on Syrian national television. He spoke of the Syrian army almost having everything under control again and of the whole Syrian crisis being done with within two weeks, if he could stop the entry of more terrorists into Syria. The Syrian State Department also sent a letter to the president of the World Security Council and the Secretary General of the UN in order to underline the fact that Assad's political agenda is a proper foundation for settling the crisis. This one-sided reporting, which we are offered on almost all channels, of the evil "Assad regime" and the FSA's "freedom fighters" getting stronger is very dangerous, but not just for the Syrian people. Considering the fact that Russia and the NATO countries are busy widening their military presence in the region, an escalation in Syria concerns us all.

False reporters who agitate nations against nations and copy each other's work, instead of independently researching the facts, desperately need to be exposed.

A defense system for attack?

tm. On January 8th, 2013 the German media made just a passing mention on beginning the deployment of the Patriot defense-system in Turkey. If the Turkish Premier Erdogan would call on the NATO collective defense act against Syria, Germany would once again be involved in war. Even NATO experts assume that this option has not yet conquered the minds of the Germans. Yet around the world the media discern the German approach totally differently. It is feared that the Patriot rockets may not primarily serve the purpose of defending the Turkish border against rocket attacks from Syria but to prepare a war attack of the western allies against a sovereign nation. This is talking about Iran. The German chancellor gets Germany involved in more and more dubious wars (Afghanistan, Mali, Syria and soon Iran?). Have we already forgotten the millions of dead people from World War Two?

military-research institute had been bombed. The daily newspaper of St. Gallen wrote that the Syrian explanation of this topic sounds plausible, but probably does not comply with the facts. Who assures us, that the version of events regarding the destruction of the truck convoy and the anti-aircraft missiles is the truth? As one can see in this opaque reporting, one has to be extremely careful with news from Syria and the surrounding countries. According to statistics of the International Journalists Association, 36 of 121 journalists killed worldwide in 2012, lost their life in Syria. That is an increase of one third, compared to 2011. A minor segment of these murders were properly investigated and the perpetrators legally punished. These circumstances leave us no choice but to infer that there is no real interest in letting the world know the truth about the real conditions in Syria. Instead, the whole world is being informed about what great war-threats are coming from Syria (and Iran). The events of these past days bring the question up again, as to whether the military offensive is actually coming from Israel.

Dangerous propaganda about chemical weapons em. With great effort, the US-Government is trying to convince us that the Syrian government intends to use chemical weapons against their own population. But who really still believes this propaganda? Sergej Lawrow, the Russian secretary of state, stated: ‘I do not think Syria would dare do this step. Politically that would mean suicide made possible by the government.’ Concerning the accusations against Syria, Mosche Jaalon, Israel’s secretary for strategic affairs, announced: “We have heard this news and the statements from the opposition. More than once. But to this day we have yet to find any proof or confirmation of the reports about the use of such weapons.” He went on to say that members of the Syrian opposition are interested in starting a foreign military invasion in Syria in order to come to power. And therein, so states Mahmud Sadshadi, Iranian ambassador in Moscow, lies the great danger. In that case, the rebel invasion would simply have to proceed with a chemical attack, which would be accredited to Assads regime, and the western troops stationed all around Syria would finally have reason to invade the country.

Ahmadinejad – Anti-Semite or friend of the Jews?

Rabbi Yisroel Dovid Weiss, spokesman of Neturi Karta (an ultraorthodox Jewish group established 1935) said one evening before a meeting with the Iranian president Ahmadinejad in New York on September 24th 2007 as follows: “It is always a pleasure for us to meet with president Ahmadinejad [...] We emphasis every time during these visits with the Iranian leadership that we consider the Iranian people and their leaders to be friendly and respectful despite the media hype. In the President of Iran we see a deeply religious man who is committed to a peaceful world that is founded on mutual respect, fairness and dialogue.” During the meeting a spokesman of the Jewish community said among other things: “President Ahmadinejad is a role model for the leaders of the world because he realizes the difference between Judaism, the religion and the opposing Zionism, which is profane materialism [...] We wish to live in peace just like the Jewish community lived peacefully in Iran for thousands of years. God bless president Ahmadinejad.” The latter concludes the meeting by saying: “Be assured that we will stay together.” Following this there are heartfelt embraces between Ahmadinejad and the Jewish visitors. In 2007 there were approx. 40.000 Jews living in Iran. This is the biggest Jewish community in the Middle East outside Israel. It is distressing that we don’t hear news like that from the mass media. Be a countervoices when it is said that “Ahmadinejad is an anti-Semite.”

Great Britain - fear of uncovering the war in Iraq?

me. ‘The British government under the conservative Prime Minister David Cameron ‘postpones’ the publication of their own ‘official’ investigation report concerning the war in Iraq until the year 2014 or even further’, states the internet page of the British newspaper Daily Mail. ‘It is possible that the further postponing has to do with the fact that the then Blair government had an advisory report from 27 judicial experts of the foreign office, which claimed a war against Iraq to be a violation of human rights.’ This means that the war against Iraq was a crime which cost many people their lives and which to this day has left massive, painful consequences for the population. Therefore, a reconstruction of what is left after this catastrophe is at least as important as putting on trial the war crimes in former Yugoslavia, which were investigated thoroughly over the course of years by the International Court of Justice in Den Haag.

Cancer for critics

hs. The Belgian news program „Terzake” reported on February 9th, 2013 about the health condition of the Venezuelan president Hugo Chávez. The news anchor literally said: “Chávez has his own belief about cancer. Cancer is supposed to be part of the American plot to eliminate left-wing oriented Latin-American politicians.” But Chávez voiced his misgiving: “Would it be surprising if the USA had developed technologies that cause cancer? And no one knows about it and only discovers it in 50 years time? (...) It is quite common that we heads of government who are critical of the USA suffer from cancer.” How did the press sell that? They try to make Chávez himself and his statement look ridiculous and implausible. But is it not a remarkable coincidence that Chávez got cancer just after his official statement reporting that the USA had caused the earthquake in Haiti (2010) using an earthquake-weapon?

Closing Point •
Identification with the affliction of the others is as relevant as ever these days.
We live in a world that would rather donate €100,- to anywhere than really identify themselves with suffering people and take a stand for them.
BE the exception and donate YOUR attention to these people and YOUR stand for a better world.
