INTRO

"It has become fashionable to demonize Russia and Putin. And this did not start with Kiev or Sotschi. Western politicians enjoy acting macho-like as the rulers of the world right before the eyes of Moscow. This is not only very dumb, but is also, as you see, quite dangerous. It's playing with fire and must stop now."

America's global predominance is under threat

ejb. Journalist Finian Cunningham says: "The US is prepared to plunge Europe into a war with Russia in order for Washington to preserve its hegemony over the transatlantic axis".

For this he gives two reasons: The first reason is: the growing relations between Russia and Europe are threatening America's political influence. And the second is: the intensive trade of energy between Europe and its main supplier, Russia, is threatening the US dollar as the key currency. In the future it is inevitable that oil and gas supplies will be paid for in euros and roubles. This would be the end of the financial dominance of the USA and will be a disaster for the heavily indebted US-economy.

The journalist Christof Lehmann wrote about a conversation with a high ranking NATO-admiral. This admiral reported that in the early eighties colleagues from the Pentagon informed him that the USA and Great Britain would create a new European war if at some time in the future Europe and Russia were to develop close relations. For this reason Washington created the crisis in Ukraine and is willing to sacrifice millions of people's lives in a war between Russia and Europe.

Where is Russia's large military force along the Ukrainian border?

sg./tb. NBC-reporters reveal: On the Ukrainian-Russian border none of the large Russian military build-up has been seen which was talked of in media and by politicians for weeks. Altogether the reporters only found three military bases along the border, these with little operation. The atmosphere in the nearby Russian villages is relaxed and the Russian population there desires a peaceful solution to the conflict. "A video on the internet that was supposed to prove the existence of Russian military maneuvers along the Ukrainian-Russian border shows pictures of landscapes which seem to be from the Caucasus rather than from the European part of Russia". This is what a Ukrainian living there told the V&C news service. They obviously seem to be stock pictures.

At the same time, however, you hear that NATO is massively increasing its air, land and sea troops in Eastern Europe. For example a NATO-insider reports, that they are going to triple the amount of fighter aircrafts which patrol over the Baltic States.

High ranking NATO-officer stands up for Putin

hoj. In an official letter to the Russian president Putin, the former NATO airforce lieutenant-colonel, Jochen Scholz, showed great understanding for Russia's political attitude concerning the situation in Ukraine. This letter warns that the NATO missile defense system in Eastern Europe is a strategy to make a nuclear attack possible against Russia, and it's signed by many German intellectuals. Scholz writes in his letter: The West is jealous of the political and economic success of Russia with Putin as president. The national and economic improvement of his country since his inauguration, in the year 2000, is the real reason for the Western aggression. This is what Scholz explained to the Russian president. He wished Putin steadiness and prudence on behalf of all who signed the letter.

The following data from the official Russian Federal State Statistics Service underline the statement of Jochen Scholz. They show how Russia has improved under Putin's government, from the years 2000-kuwe. 97 percent of the Crimean population had voted in favour of the union with the Russian Federation. As a result of this the USA and EU promptly imposed sanctions on Russia. The media displays Russia's actions as absolutely unlawful, with the result that even the Swiss Federal Council considered imposing sanctions on Russia, even though it is obliged to neutrality in accordance with the Federal Constitution. The following excerpts of a table are taken from "Tomato Bubble". Even though this source is somewhat sensational the contents of the table were correctly researched and are thought-provoking.

2010. This sheds new light on why the West feels uneasy concerning Russia.

Who is the real aggressor?

Double standards

sm. The spokesperson of EU High Representative Catherine Ashton clearly stated: "Political demands [in Ukraine] should be addressed in a non-violent way through appropriate fora". The European Union observes the situation "attentively and with concern". The eastern part of Ukraine is observed "attentively and with concern" whereas the EU and US turn a blind eye to the events in western Ukraine. "Attentively and with concern" would be more believable if it was valid for all of Ukraine. Or if other actors were shown the red card, too. As a reminder, because it got lost in the mainstream media once again: While in Donetsk and Charkov pro-Russian activists are laying siege to authorities, the Supreme Court in the Ukrainian capital is stormed by members of the 'Right-Sector', and units of the Maidan's Self-Defense Force. Yet this blatant onslaught on independent judiciary is not given any attention in the media nor causes an outcry amongst the political representatives.

An additional example: In the Ukrainian Parliament Petro Symonenko, chairman of the Communist Party, spoke out his discontent about the violent actions of the interim government against the pro-Russian activists in the eastern regions of the country. "You are today doing everything to intimidate people. You arrest people, start fighting people who have a different point of view". While Symonenko was stating his deviant opinion he was, without hesitation, beaten away from the speaker's desk.

Are these the democratic and constitutional standards Lady Ashton was referring to?

Who commissioned the snipers of Kiev?

ap. On Thursday, April 3, 2014, the Ukrainian prosecuting authorities announced the preliminary investigative results concerning the bloody riots in Kiev from February. The new Ukrainian government had pressed charges against former President Yanukovich and 'Berkut' (special police force) and holds them responsible for the assassination of about 100 people during the riots. The question of who the snipers had been and where the gunshots had come from, however, remained ignored by the new government, according to Russia's Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov. In a telephone conversation from February 26, 2014, the Minister of Foreign Affairs from Estonia, Urmas Paet, said to the EU-representative Catherine Ashton: "It is really concerning, that none of the new coalition wants to find out what exactly happened. It seems it was not Yanukovich who commissioned the snipers but somebody from the new coalition." Could it be that the new government in Kiev is not at all interested in a thorough investigation out of fear that the truth might be revealed?

Closing Point •
"Wouldn't it be nice if we lived the rule of Law and Human Rights instead of constantly finger-wagging at our opponents? Probably it would take us much further than confrontation or pharisaic moral instructions."
